DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This three bay, two story plus mansard dwelling on the east side of North Conococheague Street, is the southernmost section of a row house, renovated during the late 19th century. Segmental arches of brick above the windows were added, but the Flemish bond brickwork and the elliptical arch above the front door suggest an original building date in the early 19th century. The mansard roof, too, is an addition.

Windows have single pane, double hung sashes. In the mansard roof are gabled dormers.
